Noteable Qualities
LOYALTY:	An assistant coach must be supportive of the program and its coaches at all times. It is far easier to take on the responsibilities of coaching when each member of the coaching staff is supportive and trusting of one another
TEAM WORK:	An assistant coach must be team oriented, focusing on working with the other coaches to do what is best for the team. A team with great chemistry yields much more success than a dysfunctional
COMMUNICATION:	An assistant coach must be able to communicate their ideas efficiently to the players and the staff as well. Progressive actions can only be taken when communication between the assistants and the head coach is open and encouraged. Players can progress quicker as well when drills, techniques, and schemes are communicated to them clearly
RESPECT:	An assistant coach must be respectful to the team, school, community, and themselves. Make positive choices in your life that will not only benefit yourself, but the team as well. One of the best ways to influence others is to lead by example.
